

Surprise Valley High school

Student Learning Outcomes

Collaborators who:

- work together to reach a goal while developing a deeper understanding of topics
- prepare for and participate in conversations building on others' ideas and expressing their own ideas clearly and persuasively
- evaluate information presented in many formats, including written, visual, and oral
- evaluate a speaker's point of view, reasoning, and use of evidence
- use technology to publish writing, interact and collaborate with others

Communicators who:

- effectively communicate in verbal form adapting speech to the given task
- effectively communicates in written form presenting information, findings, and supporting evidence so audiences can follow the line of reasoning
- read with a high level of comprehension
- listen effectively and actively
- connect with peers and experts around the world to share thoughts, questions, ideas and solutions
- adapt voice and purpose toward a specific audience

Creative individuals who:

- use technology to achieve comprehension across multiple subjects
- innovate and invent new approaches to get things done
- effectively write, create, and deliver material
- work with measurements, data and modeling
- present ideas in original and surprising ways
- build upon ideas by asking new questions
- brainstorm multiple ideas and solutions to problems
- solve problems, address issues and construct original products

Critical thinkers who:

- draw evidence from sources to support analysis, reflection, and research
- evaluate content presented in diverse formats
- evaluate arguments and specific claims while assessing the validity of claims
- construct arguments to support claims using valid reasoning and relevant evidence
- integrate information while avoiding plagiarism
- construct explanatory texts to convey complex ideas through the effective selection and analysis of content
- conduct short and longer research projects based on focused questions